Like elephants marching single file, trunk to tail, the years in succession pass-and new presidents and executive committees serve their stint with the Alumni Association. Another elephant has now passed before the viewer. (I do not intend, though I am a Republican, to show political bias in this simile.)

During the year emerged those elements which make up life. There was sorrow felt and expressed at the death of Francis Callard. There was joy and appreciation at the dedication of the auditorium. Our year's endeavor has been to conclude what started in the past and to lay plans for the future. Our main work has been the successful establishment of the Gilman Fund. This is a cumulative endowment fund, interest from which is to be plowed back until the Fund itself reaches a sizable amornt, the precise figure to be established by the Board of Trustees. Into this Gilman Fund will go (1) proceeds from Annual Giving, which, as you are aware, we inaugurated this fall; (2) bequests in estates; (3) special gifts of cash or securities; and (4) such miscellaneous items as proceeds from the returns on the sale of school neckties and gifts to the school not specifically earmarked for particular use.

Before deciding on the establishment of the Gilman Fund, a committee of Tom Hughes, Chairman, Fred Wagner, and C. T. Williams made a lengthy study of its need. The Hughes report was used as a basis for discussion in the Executive Committee with the Board of Trustees and with Mr. Callard. To look far into the future, the Fund is a long-range project to insure keeping tuition in line and masters' salaries up. Our Annual Giving program, the main string to the Fund bow, was started after much study of other programsAndover, Hotchkiss, Episcopal High School, Yale, Princeton, Goucher-by a committee headed by Teddy Gorman. We do not plan to use pressure in our program, but hope for a broad return, though individual amounts are low, without it.

More and more the Executive Committee is desirous of taking on projects which rightly and properly can be handled by the Alumni Association. This past year, for example, under Tom Hughes' guidance, the new school tie was designed, fabricated, and put on sale, and a school flag was designed by Gilman's faculty artist, Jack Garver, and has been ordered by the Alumni Association at its expense.

In May, the auditorium, whose portals show on the cover design of this issue, was dedicated to the enjoyment of those boys and girls who would use it. The co-educational element was injected because the first use of the auditorium was a joint glee club concert with the Roland Park Country School. Man's emotional need for both building and song was mentioned in the dedication. It seemed most fitting that the building's first use should be a concert of voices.

In closing, I want to say that the work which befell me this past year was fun to do-fun because of the pleasant cooperation of the Executive Committee, Mr. Callard and the faculty, and the Board of Trustees. Incidentally, the student body seems to enjoy both the curricular and extra-curricular work, and this, I think, is due to its closeness to a good headmaster and faculty.

This report was written before we sent out our first solicitation for the Annual Giving program. It would be remiss of me not to call your attention to that section at the back of the Bulletin where the returns up to our deadline are listed. Our sincere appreciation to all who have worked for and contributed to this program. It is a pleasure to those of us who sired this idea to herald its successful birth.

HEADMASTER'S REPORT

November 1, 1956.

To the Gilman Alumni:

Once again I am happy for the opportunity provided by the Bulletin to send greetings and news of the School. With the completion of the Alumni Auditorium this year, I would like especially to express our gratitude for your initiative and help which made possible this building. For all the boys and the faculty who are enjoying and benefiting from the Auditorium, I express our continuing gratitude for this wonderful facility. It has exceeded all of our expectations, and I am confident that it will increase in usefulness over the years. We hope that many of you will be able to stop in to see the Auditorium and perhaps to share with us the experience of morning chapel, or a Sixth Form speech, or a play in an ideal setting.

The School enrollment has reached the maximum for the facilities we have, and under present conditions we shall probably continue to have a total student body of approximately 610 , of whom 375 boys are in the Upper School. This number utilizes to the full our fields and buildings. We are planning to convert the Cage for more extensive use in the winter athletic program, which now functions under a staggered schedule of periods extending till late in the day. When the means are available, our plan is to put in a floor, to partition a large wrestling room and three basketball courts, and to provide adequate heating and lighting. The proceeds of this year's Circus have been allotted to this improvement, which will in time make the Cage more serviceable than it has ever been. The next major building project, which we contemplate when funds are in hand, will be the completion of the quadrangle of the Lower School, providing larger classrooms for the classes now housed in remodeled space in the Cottage.

A row of six faculty houses has been built during the summer on an attractive site east of the original faculty housing near the gymnasium. The houses are unusually spacious and convenient, and I can think of no more valuable investment for the School than to provide for the faculty adequate housing on the grounds. I am happy to report that we now have twelve faculty houses, all on the southern boundary of the campus. This building undertaking has consumed our fund for improvements, but it has been accomplished without incurring any indebtedness.

Additions to the physical plant have not been our major concern, however, for there is the constant responsibility to improve the academic program. Here the most interesting development has been the extension of the so-called honors courses in English and mathematics. Thus far we have confined our efforts to these two basic subjects, though individual boys may do advanced work in French. This year there are two sections of Sixth Form mathematics: the regular class doing trigonometry, solid geometry, and advanced algebra; and an honors section studying calculus. The honors sections in English begin in the Fourth Form, and they carry through to the Sixth Form, when the Advanced College Placement Examination of the College Board will be taken in English and also in mathematics. The program of honors courses makes better provision for the boys who are able to proceed rapidly, without lessening the importance of the regular courses where the majority of the boys will be. Our concern for them has not lessened.

The required courses in the History of Music in the Third Form and the History of Art in the Fourth Form are providing for all boys a background of understanding and appreciation which is highly desirable. I feel that interest in these fields has grown steadily each year. We continue to seek experiences by which boys will come to have greater concern and interest in community life and problems, and we trust that what we are doing will ultimately be reflected in uniformly faithful citizenship among the graduates of this School.

In conclusion, I would like to express very sincerely our appreciation of the interest of the Alumni in what we are doing, and especially to thank the officers and executive committee of the Association for their help in so many ways. The School is immeasurably stronger because of the keen interest of the Alumni, and we are exceedingly grateful for it. If you are in Baltimore on Saturday, December 22nd, do plan to come to school for the Christmas Dinner at midday: An invitation will reach you shortly. To all of you, however, for the faculty and the boys, I send our warm remembrances and best wishes.

Faithfully yours,

Henry H. Callard

Abstract

Horace Rumsey, '26, was an outstanding end at Gilman, where he also made All-Maryland in soccer and played on the baseball team. Kept from football at Yale by a shoulder injury, he played varsity lacrosse and in his junior year was on the intercollegiate champion soccer team. An anecdote illustrates his energy and enthusiasm. Without his knowledge his name was entered in a Philadelphia squash tournament, although he had never played. He went through with it, and was eliminated. In the process, he caught squash fever, learned the game, and eventually came within touching distance (runner-up) of the Maryland State doubles championship. In much the same manner Mr. Rumsey was inveigled into writing a survey of football at Gilman. He caugnt historian's fever, took time from his work with Charles' Ingram & Co., and in producing the following article so uprooted the archives at Gilman that they will never be the same.

By Horace V. Rumsey, '26

Those who read in this bulletin last year the article on wrestling by Copper Walker have showered worthy praise on the author, the wrestling team at Gilman, and its esteemed coach, Mr. Russell. Now, I have been asked to write about Gilman football. One recalls, of course, there is another sport at Gilman entitled "Football," which, through the years 1901 to 1955, has attained a rather enviable record as proven by the statistics on the adjoining pages.

These statistics were compiled from school records, which were not particularly good from 1901 to 1916, and, if it were not for Mr. Hausmann and others, the final data could never have been completed. If anyone finds mistakes in my figures or names-let the grammar pass-as no doubt he will, please write to the School requesting correction and showing proof.

In reviewing the years, I find we have a record of which we all should be quite proud. We have won almost twice as many games as we have lost. In my opinion, there have been three predominant factors in bringing about this success, namely, school spirit, coaching, and Gilman families.

School spirit was born the first day of School and reached a peak in 1917, the first undefeated season with a solid schedule of major opponents. It has never declined since. Without this spirit we could never have overcome our handicap of manpower, weight, and age. Believe it or not, in 1906, the average weight of the Varsity Team was 127 lbs . We still often face a weight handicap, but there is no reason why school spirit should not be as effective today as it was then. Our 1955 team furnishes a good example. Although inexperienced, they recovered from a discouraging season and showed great spirit in overcoming odds to beat McDonogh 20-7 in the final game.

This spirit will never die at Gilman, but there could be an improvement in Gilman cheers and songs. We have improved considerably since the cheer of 1904 which went like this: "Hulla balloo, Hulla balem, The Gilman School, You can't beat them," or a later song of which some excerpts went like this: "New boys, old boys, short boys, tall boys, For that is the way to build our School, Get a grip and learn the way to score again for Blue and Gray, to score, score, score again for Blue and Gray." Yes, we have improved, but I believe we can still do better than what we now have.

CAN YOU IDENTIFY?

Coaching has always been the best. I mention particularly Mr. Hoban, Mr. Brown, and Mr. Carter because between them they cover a period of 32 out of 55 years of Gilman football. Naturally, I want to include Mr. Russell, who never was a Head Coach, but, believe me, with his instruction and inspiration to undersquad players, he made life easier for the Head Coach for many years, and is still doing it. All our coaches through the years had the highest ideals and greatest knowledge of football. I defy any school to equal them in these qualities.

I remember that in 1924 we lost to City. It was the first time in seven years we had lost to a state team other than Tome. Overnight, Mr. Hoban made a radical change in our whole offensive system. The following week, a fortypoint favorite Episcopal team beat us only 20-14. (They would not have beaten us at all, if I had not gazed into the stands to wave at my best girl, and let an Episcopal back go by me for a touchdown.) I recall the time Mr. Brown wheeled Pepper Constable, injured the week before, into the lockerroom between halves to inspire our team, in the face of certain defeat, to beat Tome 14-6.

The third factor-Gilman families-is hard to describe. I refer to their loyalty to the school, and the part they have played in our football. It would be difficult to look at a line-up of a Gilman football team today, without finding the name of one of these families. To name a few, I refer in alphabetical order to the Alexanders, Callards, Careys, Classens; Finneys, Grays, Hookers, Jacksons, Janneys, Leggs, Lowndes, Miles, Obers, Randalls, Riggs, Scarletts, Slagles, Stinsons, Trimbles, Whitridges, and Williams. These twenty-one families have received a minimum of forty-five Gilman varsity football letters. Their names have dominated Gilman football over the years, and at least fifteen of them were captains of their teams.

The Lowndes family alone boasts eight players, including three captains. In a few more years possibly we could name an all-Lowndes team. Bladen Lowndes, the oldest, had the unique experience of playing for us in 1920 and against us in 1923, when he was an outstanding player and captain of a great Hill team. They beat us badly that year; I won't mention the score. I was playing in the line next to Arden Lowndes, his brother, and believe me, it was no brotherly act. Bladen could gain at will through our line, but not through Arden. Blood flowed freely, and the language was not altogether pure, although I may have misconstrued some words. Bladen was really burned up because he could not get past his dear little brother. Then, consider the Stinson family; three brothers went on to get their varsity letters in football at Princeton. All of these families, plus many more not mentioned here, not only helped to make football successful at Gilman, but also went on to attain success in their varied careers. Gilman can well be proud of them.

I cannot understand why I was ever asked to write this article on football. (Mr. Lipscomb never gave me over 25 in English.) It must have been because I was at Gilman for nine years, 1917 through 1926, during which time I was on the varsity squad for five years. It might be because of my versatility during those five years, as I played every position known to man. When someone beat me out for one position, I would try for another. Or, possibly, it could be my vivid memory of the 1921 team, the greatest in all Gilman history. That was the team of all teams. Mr. Pickett did some research and compiled data which proved, by comparative scores, that the 1921 team was the top prep school team in the East. Five players were named on the All-Maryland team that year. In the last game that season, we beat Tome 66-0. Our blocking was so perfect in that game, it seemed the whole Tome team was running laterally instead of goalward. Our backfield, consisting of Brice Goldsborough, Jake Slagle, Heinie Wegner, and Ots Foster, was the best we ever had.

It is impossible in just these few pages to mention every name and interesting or important event that make up Gilman football. But did vou know that-

We had five undefeated teams in earlier years and five teams which lost only one game in later vears.

We beat Tome three times by the exact same score, $7-6$, in 1917, 1918, and 1932, and Howdie Gray caught the pass that won the game in both 1917 and 1918.

Episcopal High beat us by the exact same score, $6 \cdot 0$, for four years.
We have never had an unscored-on team. The closest we came to it was in 1917 and 1925, when our opponents scored six points and seven points respectively. In 1925, we scored the only six points that Lawrenceville had scored on them all season. They beat us 7.6 that year, and I was responsible for missing the seventh point after touchdown. Mr. Brown can vouch for the weeping and wailing which took place after the game.

I recovered a blocked punt within the Lawrenceville twenty-yard-line in three different years, and never could get across the goal line to score the winning touchdown. The scores were 14-17, 7.7, and 6.7 in those three years. I must have been carrying my horseshoe upside down.

As good as Jake Slagle was, there are some Alumni who think his brother, Charley Slagle, was even better at Gilman, if that were possible.

Dunhams beat us $82-0$ in 1912. Dick Randall's team, a very good one, came back to beat them 58.0 two years later.

Cy Sweeney's mother received many an enthusiastic hug from our coach and players alike after he caught the winning touchdown pass to beat McDonogh $12-7$ on the last play of the game in 1936.

In one game, a Gilman player was hurt badly on the field, and a hurried call for a doctor was made to the stands. There was no response at first, until finally a noted gynecologist appeared to give his assistance.

City College's score of 11-0 against us in 1924 was painted on the roof of the old gymnasium and could not be erased for two years; our opponents must have used atomic paint.

In 1933, as definite underdogs by 30 points, we beat Tome 6.0 by a "conversation play" in the last minute of the game when quarterback Dick Janney befuddled the opposition by saying to a teammate, "Damn it, why don't you learn the signals," as the ball was snapped.

In 1923, Hill beat us 44.0 . In each of the first three times we got the ball, Hill recovered our fumble to score on the same play.

We tied City College for the state championship in both 1940 and 1941.
In 1950, one of Nick Carter's many great teams was involved in a crucial struggle with Poly. As the game was about to end, Gilman had the ball on its own fifteen-yard line, first and ten. We fumbled, and Poly scored on the next and last play of the game to win the state championship.

Red Finney was All-American in both football and lacrosse at Princeton. He played the backfield at Gilman and center at Princeton, while Stan Purnell played center at Gilman and in the backfield at Princeton.

One final word, and I'm really sticking my neck out now. If anyone wants to argue, I would be delighted to meet him at the Ritz Bar in Paris at some far distant time. I am listing below my personal selections for an All-Gilman Football Team. (It must be understood that I base my selections on the ability of the player at the position he played at Gilman, without consideration for what he did after he left Gilman.)

| Ends: | Howdie Gray 1919 and Mac Patterson 1932. |

A DAY TO REMEMBER

Sports-minded readers will recall Cooper Walker's colorful survey of wrestling at Gilman in last year's Alumni Bulletin. Walter Lord wrote Cooper as follows:
"[Your article on wrestling] . . . brought back so many memories. Especially the Jack Legg-Chung Hoon match. There indeed was the battle of the Titans. I remember so well watching it from the gym balcony. A second Former, I was meant to be home by 6:30 for supper, but there they were, going into their third overtime. When I finally got home, my mother's wrath went completely over my head. I had seen history.
"Yes, I can see them all. Like Mr. Chips, I can recite now the names of everybody in the picture at the end of your article. In fact, I'll do it. From left to right-[Ed. note: The picture is reprinted below. Try your hand at the names, and see if you match Walter's list.] The year: 1935. How many of your readers can do that?

Best,

The Challenge to the $P_{\text {rivate }}$ School

By Charles Page Smith, '36

Charles Page Smith, Gilman '36, took his A.B. from Dartmouth (where, Russell-inspired, he was instrumental in adding wrestling to the sports agenda). He served five years in the Army, and, as company commander of Co. C, 10th Mountain Division, was severely wounded in Italy. The war over, he taught for a year at Gilman, then went to Harvard for a Ph.D. Thereafter he was research associate and lecturer at the Institute of Early American History and Culture, Williamsburg, Va. For the last four years Mr. Smith has been at the University of California, where he is Associate Professor of History. His book, James Wilson, has just been published.

Private schools like Gilman have been on the defensive for a good many years. Their critics have charged that by denying their pupits contact with boys and girls from other walks and conditions of life, they have encouraged snobbery, smugness, and complacency.

James B. Conant, the former president of Harvard, has been one of the most outspoken critics of private schools, charging that parents who send their children to private schools are lacking in a sense of community responsibility. He has argued that, if public schols are in many instances below par, parents should devote their best efforts to improving them rather than "escaping" the problem of inadequate public education by sending their children to schools that are accessible only to the well-to-do.
"Undemocratic," other critics of the private school have cried. "In a society which prides itself on devotion to 'equality' and which officially recog. nizes no classes, the private school is an anomaly. It should be done away with because it siphons off money and energy that are needed if we are to improve public school education."

Whether one agrees with such criticisms they merit thoughtful consideration by those who count themselves friends and champions of private school education. They have indeed been hotly debated for some time, and I suspect there are few headmasters who are not extremely sensitive to the charge that their student bodies represent only one rather narrow social and economic segment in the community. Most schools have made vigorous efforts to enroll outstanding boys and girls from every economic level, recognizing that only by doing so can the private school enlist the support and sympathy of its community.

My own teaching experience at a great state university convinces me that our society has an enormous potential of unused creative capacity and energy that is presently lost. To find ways to utilize this "lost creativity" is one of the great problems of our age, and private schools should play a vital role in this enterprise. The question is "how?"

Or perhaps first we should ask, "What advantages does private school education have over public school education?" Certainly they must be more than the social advantages of going to a "good" school with the "right" companions. If it comes to no more than this, it is a matter of very small importance and is doomed to extinction in a more enlightened age.

II

It is often said confidently that the private school gives a "better" education. But "better" in terms of what? Of the "fundamentals" is the usual answer: more discipline, more intensive drill, more nomework, severer grading, But these are hardly values in themselves. They are to be highly regarded only if they have some desirable end-result; if they produce a wiser, more humane. more effective individual than is produced by a system that stresses different values-such values, let us say, as cooperation, imaginativeness, self-expression. The evidence on what is the "best" type of education is presently far from clear, and the two sets of values are by no means antithetical; they can and should be complementary, and one of Henry Callard's great achievements is that he has made them more nearly so than ever before in Gilman's history and done it without leading any crusades or alarming the most determined stand-patters.

Whatever its positive virtues may be, the private school has, at the moment, a whole host of negative virtues. It is not, for instance, under the financial thumb of a School Board obsessed with various anxieties, politically ambitious, opposed to change, afraid of "the boys in the State House," divided into warring factions. It is not under the ideological thumb of "educators" with their rigid dogmas about "life adjustment," "core curriculums," and "reading readiness." Its teachers are not, or need not be, inundated by students and above all by endless reports and "study plans," by mountains of meaningless paperwork for busy little bureaucrats.

This means immeasurably greater opportunity for creative teaching, for encouraging and developing capacity of whatever kind in the individual student, for establishing the kind of human contact that is at the heart of the learning process. People learn when minds touch minds and hearts touch hearts, when we are drawn out of our routines and given a vision of new potentialities and new dimensions of experience.

It would be very wrong, of course, to assume that this does not take place in the public schools. Indeed it does-by dedicated, overworked, underpaid teachers-and in the sum total far more often than in the private schools. But in the latter the opportunities are far greater simply because the ratio of students to teachers is infinitely better in the private than in the public school.

But these are, after all, virtues which affect the individual student. The private school has social or public virtues about which I wish to speak, which are, perhaps, of greater importance than its "private" virtues.

III

Education in the United States had its origin in the conviction of our forefathers that they must take the responsibility for providing their communities with intellectual and moral leadership. In this spirit the poorest villages struggled to establish, first, an "elementary" school, and then "an academy" which would enable their more gifted youngsters to prepare for college. Initially, the community did what it could ill afford to do, because it felt that even less could it afford to raise up an uneducated generation. But the education which was such a heavy financial charge upon the community was, at the same time, a heavy moral charge upon the student. The community must get back in leadership its investment of capital. The individual was not educated for his own good. If that had been the goal, there would have been no public education and no academy. The community had no interest in helping an individual make more money, or know more facts, or learn to speak Latin like a gentleman. The community's interest was direct and specific, and, if you will, selfish. The community, concerned with perpetuating itself and its values, knew it must give the best preparation to its best human material. That is the whole story of the genesis of American secondary and college education.

The private school is the heir of the academy. It is part of that great tradition. It has sprung from a soil somewhat different from that of the high school. The high school was the extension of the primary school whose basis was the belief that everyone must have a certain minimum education so that all could read God's word in Holy Scripture, but with no special obligation to the community implied.

The academies, during the latter part of the nineteenth century, lost their early character. They became, in many instances, refuges for the rich from the rather dirty and disorderly world of the great mass of Americans. They dedicated themselves to educating young gentlemen, and the young gentlemen found that they indeed provided entry into a comfortable and prosperous world -the world in modern terms of an H. M. Pulham or a George Apley; they provided the contacts and the social polish that helped to mark one as a member of the ruling class. And this is why the smaller communities and the larger community which is the nation sometimes regard the private school with suspicion. It is not so much that they feel it defies or rejects traditional values, as that they feel that it is a closed and essentially selfish, or self-seeking enterprise, designed to turn out a better product, not in response to the needs of the community, but because a better product makes more money, moves in better circles, and lives in a nicer neighborhood.

Now it must be said at once that this is not a true or fair judgment, but it has some truth in it. And it seems to me that rather than congratulating itself on being better than its public counterpart, the private school might ask itself whether, with humility and gratitude for its opportunities, it is making the best use of them.

We can, happily, point to many outstanding leaders in our national life who were or are alumni of private schools. But there are still not enough, and we have undeniably and quite understandably slipped from the original ideal of service to the community which distinguished the old academy, largely because private school education is now the responsibility of the individual parent rather than of the community.

IV

Today the American community does not have as many servants as she needs, as, indeed, she must have if we and the world are to survive. The private schools and the parochial schools of our various denominations must play a large part in the production of such individuals. They must, therefore, make service not an article, but the first article of their program. They must make their special opportunities even more widely available in their communities and be as persistent in hunting down "talent" as a Hollywood agent in pursuit of potential starlets.

In the nineteenth century the academies turned out thousands of dedicated men and women, missionaries foreign and domestic, who tempered our material expansion by an insistence on spiritual values. Certainly the prospects of contemporary man would be far darker than they are without those devoted labors. Today we need, if not missionaries (we always need those), equally dedicated men and women who will put service to the greater community before service to self. The private school will certainly continue to produce doctors, lawyers, business men and administrators who will be public-spirited and valuable members of their communities (indeed, in this respect few schools will rate higher marks than Gilman), but it should also produce more ministers, teachers, reformers, crusaders, men and women who stand above class loyalties, who are dedicated to moral rather than material values, who are committed to the fight for a humane social order in which the peoples of the world can realize our best hopes for the future.

Some three centuries ago John Milton gave a definition of education which we have never improved upon. "I call . . a complete and generous education," Milton wrote, "that which fits a man to perform justly, skillfully and magnanimously all the offices, both private and public of peace and war. . . . The end of learning is to know God aright, and out of that knowledge to love Him, to imitate Him, to be like Him. . . " This is the challenge to Gilman as it is to every private school that would honor its best tradition.

Auditorium $\mathcal{H}_{\text {ighlights }}$

Alumni, parents, and friends are cordially invited to attend any of the events or activities mentioned below.
Though but three months have passed since the Alumni Auditorium began its first full "school-year" of service, it has become so much a part of Gilman life that its use seems long established. At the same time, the challenge for further development is exciting. Current highlights:
 Chapel services every morning-upper school Monday through Thursday, lower school on Friday. There is a twenty-minute music program every morning before chapel, played over the superb "hi-fi" system. Weekly program is posted in advance, and twenty to thirty boys have been present daily. A permanent record collection is contemplated.
Sixth Form speeches began early in October, are delivered every Monday and Thursday morning. Elimination of seating and acoustical difficulties encountered in old "A" Study Hall is perhaps nowhere more apparent than in this program.

[^1]The first of three Audubon Society lectures was given on November 6th by Dr. Alexander Sprunt, noted ornithologist.
Lower School Friday assemblies begin with a brief chapel service, have featured informal class plays and films on nature, safety, geography, and the Community Chest. Films are sometimes used during the day to supplement classwork.
Glee Club has been rehearsing in the specially equipped Music Room, will present its first concert (Christmas carols) on Sunday, December 16th, at 4:30.
Dramatic Association will present "My Three Angels" on December 7th and 8th (Gilman III and IV Forms-Bryn Mawr V and VI Main). Senior D. A. production will be given in February or March. Incidentally, Mr. Porter's "ten-dimmer" lighting installation gives a flexibility never before possible in our productions. Future D. A. earnings will be used to supplement the lighting equipment.
Thanks almost entirely to Mr. Barker, head of the English Department, we already have quite a library of tape recordings (over 100 hours), on subjects of literary, historical, and general interest. An index has been made available to the faculty. From the central control booth, recordings can be piped to any one of six classrooms or to the auditorium proper. A committee of fifty boys is being checked out in use of the equipment, so that faculty requests for recordings or movies can be honored for any period during the day without placing a burden on any one operator. Such aids to teaching, of course, are used to supplement and not to replace basic classroom work; for example, playing of the Raymond Massey-Judith Anderson reading of John Brown's Body for the IV Form English Honors section followed two weeks' study of the work.

Chalk $D_{\text {ust }}$

When our loyal co-worker and printer, Dave Barton, scanned Bulletin copy recently, made those cryptic calculations known only to printers, and informed us that there would be a page or so of space left over, we decided to yield to editorial whimsy and take the reader on a lazy tour of the campus. That is, if you'd like to go.

Visitors to the school in early October were baffled by a seemingly inexplicable phenomenon at lunchtime. At unpredictable intervals there would be a chorus of groans or cheers. Closer scrutiny revealed that dozens of portable radios, concealed under coats or in some instances brazenly displayed, were bringing in the Series, and the progress of the Dodgers to Valhalla was being followed, as the case might be, with smiles or tears.

At this writing, the radios have made way for something that might be called "aesthetic expression in campaign buttons." Regardless of his presidential preference, the student who sports less than five buttons is really not au courant, and your startled editor one day counted twenty-three on a First Former. One "IKE" button measured six inches across.

Brush up on your Gilman football history-see Horace Rumsey's excursion into the glories of the past-and make a point of coming out to some of the games next fall. Alumni attendance this year has been good, even in the swimming meet with Forest Park.

We learn that some alumni have been puzzled by the large parking area left vacant directly in front of the school. Seems that Mr. Barnes's traffic and parking problem was making itself felt even on the Gilman campus, with resultant action by the school authorities. Parking areas have been designated for everyone who drives to school, and the wall-enclosed area in front of the main building is to be kept open at all times for visitors. It's for you. Use it. (Makes visiting the Auditorium a cinch.)

In case you were among the hundreds who came bumper-to-bumper to the Circus on October 31, you may wonder about the identity of the two stalwart students who volunteered to handle the traffic, and did it smoothly, from 2:30 to $9: 00$. Our thanks in the rosiest of chalk dust to Walter Birge and John Swope.

Let's pause under the elms for a moment and reminisce. This one goes back to the year Dick Bradley came from Kent, England, as an exchange teacher. He was still making the adjustment from the alpine dignity of the berobed English magister when one day he looked up from the great desk in "A," where he was conducting study hall, and saw two figures approaching with a twelve-foot extension ladder. One was Gross, Gilman's indispensable man-of-all-work. The other was Mr. Callard. After a friendly wave to the desk, Mr. Callard conferred with Gross. They raised the ladder so that its end rested beneath the clock over the door. Mr. Callard mounted the ladder, repaired the clock, descended, waved to the desk again, and departed with Gross and the ladder, leaving the incredulous Mr. Bradley (in his own phrase) to "goggle and gasp."

Before we leave the elms, we'd like to quote you one line from a recent third-form Ivanhoe test: "The fair Rowena had a line of golden churls down her back."

The other day we pulled down Brad Jacobs' Gilman Walls Will Echo. While glancing at the section devoted to Faculty and Staff, we began to wonder if Miss Holmes hasn't set a record. On the basis of Brad's information, we hazard a rough calculation that since the fortunate day when this administrative dynamo first came to Gilman, she has faced her overflowing desk some 10,260 times. Such speculation multiplies, of course. How many alumni has Ed Russell warmly welcomed back? Or, if you will, how many times has the indefatigable "Gross-machine" waxed its way across the Common Room?

When you have a speculation to spare, Chalk Dust would like to hear from you.
A. A.

CLASS NEWS

Your secretaries and editors are grateful for the flood of cards received from Alumni. As a result, we think this year's "Class News" is the fullest and most interesting in a long time.

Edited by A. G. Hausmann
*Class Secretary

1908-1916  THE OLD GUARD

News of the early Gilman classes is still scarce as hen's teeth. Send us any items even when they seem unimportant to you.

Ridgeley Simpson, '08, is a retired barrister and president of the Chesapeake Chinchilla Club.

George Schmidt, ' 14 , is also rettred and lives in York, Pa.

Alex Knapp, '14, is the president of the Maryland State Golf Association.

Dick Randall's ('15) firm, Maron's, is celebrating its 100th anniversary this year.

David Fringer's ('16) son, David, Jr., is a sophomore at Princeton.

Milton Offutt, ' 16 , is teaching a course in the History of Science and Technology at the City College of New York this fall term. He enjoys his retirement for the balance of the year at Crownsville, Md.

1922
*John M. Bergland, Jr., 3937 Cloverhill Road, Baltimore 18, Md.

Charles H. Cromwell, '22, has been transferred to Sweden from ARDC in Baltimore. We hope this means promotion from Major to Colonel.

Brice W. Goldsborough retired from U.S. Navy as a Commander and has now joined the organization of Burton Guy & Co. as a real estate consultant.

John McF. Bergland, Jr., has moved from 313 Overhill Road to 3937 Cloverhill Road, Baltimore 18, Md. Still with General Motors Corp.

1923

*Donald W. Hayden, Mercantile Trust Building, Baltimore 2, Md.

Dudley Sharp-The last time "Dud" was heard from was through a friend who was studying in Baltimore for a short time who said that "Dud" was chairman of the board of the Texas Fund which is a growth type mutual fund in Houston, Texas. He has since resigned to be with the Government as Assistant Secretary of Air Force Materiel. He moved to Washington about October 3rd. In 1929 he was married and has two children, Dudley, Jr., who is in the Army, and Julia, who recently graduated from Smith College.

Dr. H. A. Royster, Jr.-"Peanut"-is married and has two girls. He lives at 818 Waverly Rd., Bryn Mawr, Pa. He is one of the prominent pediatricians on the Pennsylvania "Main Line."

This summer he toured Europe with his whole family in their Chevrolet. Went to Italy, Switzerland, Germany, Holland, Belgium, France and England, covering about 3,500 miles.

1924

*Thomas W. Hughes, IV, 7 St. Martin's Road, Baltimore 18, Md.

Here's the dope on those members of the Class of ' 24 performing in the World Wide Sweepstakes!

This firsthand, authentic information has been gathered at great expense and effort by the Alumni News Service, so please read it and learn what those kids some of you used to be in the classroom with every day, are now doing.

The most prominent citizen of Gettys. burg, Pennsylvania, has appointed that city's next most prominent citizen, Don McPherson, to the Interstate Commerce Commission. Now you know where to go to get a cheaper train ride to that spot where you would like to retire. You never can tell what you may learn in this paper.

Cal Dail has joined that dignified group know as Vice Presidents, representing his firm of Marsh & McLennan, Inc., 70 Pine Street, New York City 5, in that category. Our super snooper reports there is a Dail that's a dilly filly who made her debut at the Darien, Connecticut, Cotillion in September.

INTERNATIONAL STUFF: Reg Bragonier is now Ecuadorian desk officer at the State Department in Washington.

He and his attractive wife Katherine live at 213 Prince Street, Alexandria, Virginia. Son, Reg, Junior, now Yale Class of '60 on Eugene Meyers Public Service Award Scholarsnip.

JUST STUFF: Your Bureau of Statistics was glad to receive reply cards from the following well-remembered classmates but not seen by this secretary since the Class of ' 24 became Alumni material. No doubt all '24'ers reading this will remember Bert Watson, now District Manager Armstrong Kubber Company and living at 1531 Pentridge Road, Baltimore 12, and Archie MacLaren, living at 1212 Muirlands Drive, La Jolla, California. He is Vice President of E. W. Axe & Company, Inc., Investment Counsellors.

MORE STUFF: Alec Griswold, now living on Hess Road, Monkton, Maryland, probably has the finest collection of Siamese art outside of Thailand. He has developed part of his house and garden in the style of that country so as to lend a proper setting to the many priceless pieces in his collection.

Redmond Stewart was recently Chairman of a building fund drive for a Baltimore County Family Service Center.

Tom Whelan now has his own personal fire helmet as the Chaplain of the Baltimore City Fire Department.
Last: The most recent bit of news is about Holmes Alexander, who presented the Alumni annual banquet with an astute analysis of the present national political situation. He was so good that the only criticism this reporter heard was that there should have been more.

1925

*Carl R. L. Hilgenberg, 205 Taplow Road, Baltimore 12, Md.

Fontaine Alexander is still conducting a successful insurance business in Dallas, Texas. He has recently returned from a trip to Hawaii.

Tom Boykin, who used to chase your Secretary in the lower school, is living in New York City where he is an advertising consultant. He is a member of the Masonic Order (Royal Arch No. 2), Indian Harbor Yacht Club, and the Sales Executive Club. He is a founder of Amputees Research Foundation of America.

The activities of the Maryland Tobacco Improvement Foundation, of which Eddie Gieske is the head, were briefly described in the Princeton Alumni Weekly. Eddie's family firm of tobacco merchants is nearing its hundredth anniversary.

1926

*Horace V. Rumsey, 3907 Juniper Road, Baltimore 18, Md.
Louis Burger is Director of the Uni-

Binks Goodridge was seen reunioning in Princeton this past spring. He is a broker in New York and lives in New Canaan, Conn., on Lone Tree Farm Road. He is the father of a boy and a girl and has kept in pretty good touch with a number of his classmates.

Ham Paine, the father of a boy and twin girls, is a farmer residing on West Harpeth Road, Route No. 2, Franklin, Tennessee. Who among us will ever forget that irrestible class chant: "Yours very truly I remain, Joseph Hamilton Thompson Paine"?

Aleck Knapp heads up one of the prominent life insurance agencies in Baltimore. We were glad to see him at the recent Gilman Alumni Banquet at the Elkridge Club.
Jim Poultney is a professor of Greek at Johns Hopkins University.
Harry Parr is listed as a member of our class, although your Secretary does not remember seeing him there. ' $24,{ }^{\prime} 23$, '22, '21, yes. But '25, no. However, we are very glad to have him and are pleased to report that he is as young-looking and handsome as ever.
versity Lower School in Chagrin Falls, Ohio.

Reginald Carey is President of the National Sugar Manufacturing Co. in Den: ver, Colorado. He has a daughter who is a Junior at Smith College, and two sons attending school in Denver.

Dutch Janney is still doing very well at Proctor & Gamble. He is now at their Ivorydale Plant. His son recently graduated from Princeton.

Hubert Lamb will receive a sabbatical leave from Wellesley next year to do creative work in music.
Lytt Purnell has moved from Cold Spring Lane to 913 Poplar Hill Road. He expects to have two sons at Gilman next year. He was in the management end, but now is concentrating on the brokerage end exclusively of the Real Estate business.
Meredith Reese is in the farming business, and lives at 3217 Swarthmore Road, Wilmington, Delaware. He has one daughter at school in Wilmington, and two sons, one a senior at Virginia, and one a freshman at Yale.

Dick Riggs is now in the real estate business, although he is still very interested in farming.
Horace Rumsey has a daughter who is a freshman at Goucher this year.

Yeardley Smith has two sons who played against each other in the GilmanPoly football game this fall. Both hope to go to the Naval Academy.

Jim Turner has a son who is a Naval Air Cadet at Whiting Field, Florida.
Jack Whitridge has a son who is a freshman at Yale.

1927

*Frederick W. Wagner, 1012 Winding Way, Baltimore 10, Md.

It is difficult to realize that it has been thirty years since we were members of the RULING CLASS AT GILMAN. It is gratifying that even today so many of us still get an opportunity to see each other at the various activities around Baltimore. I am thinking particularly of Merle, Scarlett, Penniman, Thomspon, Morton, Sanger, Gordon, Hooker, Smith, Lohmeyer, Markell, McMillan, Bland, Clark, King and Dobbin. From time to time Eddie Hilgenberg, Chuck Morrow, and Bob Bowie get into town. Jimmy Barton has just moved across the street from Gilman so is more frequently seen. Those who look harder can run into Whitridge, Knapp and Wiley. At the Princeton 25th reunion this year it was a distinct pleasure to run into Henry Hilken again as well as Frank Miles and his entire family, large to say the least, as well as Bob Miller. Heard from his sister that Tom Rianhard is still in Middlebury, Connecticut. Walt Jenifer, of course, is still the squire of Baltimore County.

Gaines McMillan is always a source of interesting information about our Class. Told me that not too long ago Charlie Wood took time enough out to run down to Easton and see Charlie Lipscomb, who is not at all well and who, I know, would appreciate hearing from many of you. Dick Meredith's brother-in-law told me that Dick is still the answer to the New York matron's prayer.

Believe it or not if you write Sam Lane at Edgemont, just outside of Hagerstown, you will not get a reply. If on the other hand you telephone him, the chances are ten to one that you will reach him. John Lewis, besides operating his routine coal business and living in Sewickley, Penna. has developed an Antique Business which not only has given him renown but a tremendous opportunity to travel. For some of you old timers you may be interested to learn that Hoyt Ammidon's son was a guest at our house during the early summer. He is a chip off the old block.

Wish I could give you all some news on Reeder, Leimbach, Graham, Johnston, Parker, Power and Lowndes. John Brydon is living in Canton, Illinois.
This is the year for us to have our 30th reunion get-together. That we are going to have one is absolutely definite, but we have not as yet developed any thoughts on the subject. Particularly from you out-of-towners I would like to have a letter giving me your suggestions as to when we should have it, and what kind of party it should be. Those who have come in previous years have had a grand time and have always returned. I hope that we can add many more this year. It is a golden opportunity to have a good time.

1928

*H. Graham Wood, First National Bank, Baltimore 2, Md.
Our class is represented in the medical profession by Don Hooker, who has returned to Baltimore to practice surgery, and by Jere Lord whose specialty is surgical repair of veins and arteries.

Wallace Parks is now undertaking a study under a Ford Foundation Grant, and Bob Smith is teaching at Admiral Farragut Academy in Tampa.
Alvin Dohme is breeding purebreed cattle in Front Royal, Virginia, and John Wheeler is in the investment securities business in Houston where he often runs into Tex White.

1929

*Dr. Walter B. Buck, 2 Merryman Court, Baltimore 10, Md.
Our farmer, Nelson Cover, is also still with the Portland Cement Company.

Mac Crenshaw is in farming and real estate in Rapidan, Virginia.
Butch Davis is vice-president and counsel of the Monumental Life Insurance Company and a governor of the Society of Ark and Dove.

Harrison Garrett, besides his many other duties, is now President of the Baltimore Association of Commerce.
Ben Griswold is one of those chiefly responsible for bringing Dr. Eisenhower in as President of the Johns Hopkins University.

Les Peard continues to manage WBAL with pleasant side trips to New Hampshire.

Jimmy Platt is doubly busy as vicepresident of the Stone Straw Corporation of Washington and President of the Platt Corporation of Baltimore.
Stan Purnell, our representative in Pittsburgh, is Associate Campaign Chairman of Pittsburgh's first United Fund.

John Renneburg has been made a director of the Wyman Park Federal Savings and Loan Association.

Alex Smith is President of the Murray Corporation which makes hose clamps.

Our good friend, Tot Walker, is not only doing all his Drumcastle business but is currently President of the Restaurant Association of Maryland.
Note: Please send in your cards next year and help the poor secretary.

*Douglas Wise, 326 Woodlawn Road, Baltimore 10 , Md.

Ridgely Baker is engaged in real estate brokerage and boating business in Aberdeen, Maryland.

John Bartlett, recently finished seven years making soil maps for the Soil Conservation Service and the U. S. Department of Agriculture in Oneonta, N. Y.

Warren Bledsoe, who is practicing typhology (Science dealing with blindness) at the V.A. Dept. of Blind Rehabilitation in Washington, became the proud father of a second daughter early this year.

Thomas Cadwalader, Jr., in addition to his life insurance activities, is commanding 683rd AAA BN Maryland National Guard. He has commissioned vacancies for alumni holding reserve commissions of artillery.

James Cowan last year moved to St. Davids, Pa. after being appointed exclusive representative of the Kerite Cable Company in Philadelphia.

Bowdoin Davis is following the footsteps of his famous father in plastic surgery in Baltimore.

Life insurance and èstate planning keep Edward Duker, Jr. busy in the New York City area.

William Fort has been on the bench a little more than a year serving in the capacity of Circuit Judge, Second Judicial District, Oregon.

Nelson Offutt is building up a large insurance business in Baltimore under the handle-Nelson T. Offutt & Co.

Edward Richardson continues to administer to the ills of his fellow men as physician in Baltimore.

Armistead Rust, who served as Mayor of San Angelo, Texas from 1950-1954, is dividing his time between livestock raising, TV, and the Texas Turnpike Authority of which he is chairman.
de Wolfe Sanger, who is Sales Manager for Business Forms in N.Y.C., still thinks that Mr. Janvier's physics and Mr. Dresser's math are two of the best courses he ever took.
William Selden has been named Executive Secretary of the National Commission on Accrediting in Washington, D.C., after having served as President of Illinois College since 1953.

William E. Smith, who received his M.D. at Hopkins in 1938, is Secretary of the Cancer Prevention Committee with headquarters at 550 Fifth Avenue in New York.

Roland Voorhees, living in Darien, Conn. is Associate Director of Development for Union Carbon & Carbide Corp.

Carroll Van Ness, Jr. is one of the wheels at the Chevrolet Plant of the General Motors Corp. at Baltimore.

1931

*Dudley Shoemaker, Jr., 2 Dunkirk Road, Baltimore 12, Md.  Norm Ballentine is living on the West Coast earning his salt as Assistant Manager of an American Trust Co. branch in San Rafael.

Johnny Barrett, who visited us last year, has not only been made a member of his law firm this year, but is enjoying raising avocados at his home outside of San Diego, California.

Paul Bland has moved to West Palm Beach, Florida-still in the insurance business. His 5th daughter arrived last August 1st.

Alex Cochran's architectural ability is being recognized far afield. He designed the new U.S. Consulate building in Nagoya, Japan.

Dick Emory, now Chairman of Gilman's Board of Trustees, has just moved "uptown" to 915 Poplar Hill Rd. He has recently been made Chairman of the Committee on Judicial Appointments of the Maryland State Bar Association and Chairman of the Baltimore Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.
Johnson Garrett is managing the Paris, France, office of the First National City Bank of New York.

Cuyler Hammond, father of 3 sons, is professor of Biometry and Director of Graduate Studies in Statistics at Yale. He also directs statistical research work in connection with smoking and air pollution for The American Cancer Society.

Harry Lee Smith has been designated Dean of the School of Languages, Foreign Service Institute, U.S. State Department.

Rhett Elliott died last winter as a result of a traffic accident. Jack Vanderhorst flew in from Tennessee to conduct the funeral service. Rhett had been engaged in the real estate business in Baltimore.

1932

${ }^{*}$ M. Hamilton Whitman, Brooklandville, Md.

You might have run into a member of the class of ' 32 almost anywhere this past year.
Edward Simmons covered both national conventions for the New Bedford Mass. Standard-Times. He reports no Gilman men in the Buzzards Bay area, but does see Eben Reese in the winter in Antigua, BWI.

Manning Brown, as vice-president of the New York Life Insurance Co., is in charge of that company's far-flung real estate and mortgage loan interests.

Huston Dixon spent last winter in Washington studying for an overseas assignment with the U.S. Foreign Service. His present whereabouts are unreported to us.

Dr. Pepper Constable has resigned from the medical department of the Pennsylvania Railroad and is in private practice in Princeton, specializing in internal medicine.

Sidney Miller, although based in Memphis as assistant to the president of the E. L. Bruce Co., says he spends most of the time on the road making laborsaving installations in the company's various plants.

David Allan Robertson became professor of English and chairman of the department at Barnard College on July 1. He makes frequent visits to Baltimore.

Richard Baer is running his own lumber mill in Edenton, N.C.

Back in the Baltimore area . . .
Keating Bowie will soon round out a year as chairman of the Baltimore Commission on Governmental Efficiency and Economy, an independent organization that acts as a watchdog over state and local governments.

Jonathan Pine and Margaret Louisa Dukes were married on August 11.
Richard Hoffman and Upshur Lowndes have both become lieutenant colonels: Dick in the National Guard and Uppy in the Army Reserve.

Wilbur Smith gave one of the few valid excuses for missing the annual Gilman dinner. It was held the day of his 10th wedding anniversary. That excuse is good this year only.

1933

*Alexander Armstrong, 2019 Skyline Road, Ruxton 4, Md.

1933 continues to make a fine showing at the annual alumni banquet. Choosing crab imperial or chicken this year were Boyce, Carroll, Ernie Cross, Debnam, Finney, Freeman, Gosnell, Smith, Spilman, Walker, and Armstrong. (Most of them can be spotted in the accompanying picture.)

Retiring Alumni President Walker, of course, sat in the seats of the mighty, where he emceed with his usual lusty wit and turned over authority to the new president, Bob Thomas, '38.

We learn that Henry Quellmalz, in the printing business in Albany, New York, is general chairman of the American Red Cross fund and membership campaign of Albany County in 1956 and 1957.

Billy Haigh is a real estate broker in La Jolla, California.

Murray Dewart has left Everett, Mass., and is now Rector of St. Paul's Church, Brookline, Mass. He and his family were in Ruxton during the past summer, staying at the rectory of the Church of the Good Shepherd. Murray showed that he hasn't lost the Maryland touch by consuming vast numbers of crabs at a feast at Dick Ober's.

Tim Pitts takes time from his insurance business for the National Guard and for various church and civic activities.

Edgar Smith, who seems finally to have safeguarded his attractive home against the periodic floods at "Muddy Meadows," has resigned as president of Merchants Mortgage Co. to organize Construction Credit Corporation, which will specialize in interim mortgage financing. (We urge photography enthusiasts to see Edgar's superb color movie of his recent European junket.)

Joe Matthews' attractive blonde daughter, "Weedie," will be starring in a Bryn-Mawr-Gilman dramatic production in December.

Holt Maulsby, an attorney with the Maryland Casualty Company, was recently assigned in the rank of Major as Executive Officer, 104th Fighter-Interceptor Squadron, Maryland Air National Guard.
George Debnam, following through on the quotation under his name in the Cynosure ("Speak not of empire; my garden is in bloom"), is a realtor, associated with E. Randolph Wooton Co. as their farm and estate specialst.
The following quotation is from a report just received from Princeton's Class of 1937: ". . . we can give $$ 250,000$ to the University, which will be far greater than any previous class has ever given. A great deal of this is possible because of the generous provisions under the will of the mother of our deceased classmate, Bob Janney, who left a substantial sum to Princeton, to be applied as directed by the Officers of our Class." (In connection with twentieth reunion plans.)
Frank Gosnell, now Treasurer of Tractor and Farm Supplies, Inc., (Aberdeen), has moved wife Hilda and daughter Deborah Ann to Baltimore, where they live on Bellona Avenue.

Cooper Walker returns his card with the following message: "Can still prove the Pythagorean theorem two different ways, and understand the supine in UM." He adds the reason: "Tutored a Garrison girl this summer."
Your secretary continues to labor in the Gilman vineyard, and would like to mention with pardonable pride and considerable relief the arrival last November of Alex V.
Our thanks to the many members of '33 who returned their information cards; it makes our task pleasanter and-we hope -our column more interesting. Next time we'd like to hear more from classmates in distant parts.

1934

*E. Hambleton Welbourn, Jr., Garrison, Md.

Bill Schmeisser has been appointed Executive Director of the International Development Advisory Board in Washington.
Harry Busby has resigned from Crosse and Biackwell and is operating a food brokerage firm in Baltimore.
Bernie Fenwick has been elected president of the Travelers' Aid Society of Baltimore.
Al Whipple is in charge of aircraft sales at the Hunting Park Plant of the Budd Co.

Bill Marr is fast becoming a crosscountry steeplechase threat on his swift filly, "Fatback."

Francis Whitman has become Assistant Business Manager in charge of advertising for the Sunpapers.

Bill Simmons sends greetings from San Francisco, where he is a real estate broker.

Fred Levering has been racing his sloop, Gypsy, regularly on the Chesapeake but he hasn't eaten enough potato skins to give him the necessary "base hits" to put the Gypsy out front.

Lee Randol is the Secretary-Treasurer of the Baltimore County Medical Association.

Jake Classen, Coach Schmeisser, and Clarke Barrett are still carrying the title of Most Eligible Bachelor.

1935

*Dawson L. Farber, Jr., 614 Chestnut Ave., Towson 4, Md.
"Herb" Pickett from Wilkes-Barre reports that wrestling is a major sport there and his oldest son ( 2 boys- 2 girls) is keeping up the family tradition.

John Cross reports birth of a son, Charles Thomas, on June 17, 1956 (3 boys -2 girls).
"Charley" Coit is Chairman, Department of Modern Languages and recently named Assistant to the Headmaster at the Gunnery School.
"Walley" Lord reports"by writing advertising for J. Walter Thompson, a book on the 'Titanic' for Henry Holt, a story on the 'Andrea Doria' for Life, and another piece on Pearl Harbor, I've succeeded in making all employers equally furious at me for not spending full time on the job."

Saw "Norm" Freeman, Walter Koppleman and "Ollie" Reeder at annual Elkridge Banquet, October 5, 1956. Let's have a better turn-out next year.
"Wally" Lanahan was General Chairman of the Community Chest-Red Cross Joint Appeal. Congratulations!

Now that the Alumni Association is sending out "information" cards, how about some news?

Understand an "Annual Giving" plan will be started in '57. Gilman needs our support.

1936

[^4]Bruce Baetjer is one of the city's few landscape architects and did the planting for the new auditorium. He remains unmarried.
Bob Bordley lives in Washington where he works in the advertising department of radio station WTOP. He is married and has one boy and one girl.

Jack Rogers is engaged in the real estate and insurance business in Massachusetts. He is married and has two girls.
Sam Small is our country squire. He has extensive interests in England and Africa. He is our other bachelor.

Page Smith is our most famous classmate, for he has appeared on coast to coast television on the People Are Funny Show, not as a participant but as an expert on early American History, which is his special field. He is an Associate Professor of History at U.C.L.A. His most recent publication is James Wilson, The Patriot and Signer. He is married and has two boys and two girls.
Hank Thomas is treasurer of the Palmetto Compress and Warehouse Co. in Columbia, S.C. He is married and has three daughters.
Buckey Turner is Vice President of Flynn and Emrich Co. in charge of manufacturing. He possesses the largest family having three girls, two boys, and a sixth on its way.
Alan Woods is an Assistant Professor of Surgery at Hopkins and practices surgery at large in Baltimore. He has three boys and one girl. Alan III is in the lower school.
I have placed my statistics at the end for fear that my colleague Woods would claim unfair competition. I too am a surgeon and at present care for the football teams at Gilman. I am married and the eldest of my three handsome sons is in kindergarten at Gilman.

1937

1941

*Dr. Lawrence R. Wharton, Jr., 4504 Roland Ave., Baltimore 10, Md.

Apparently only the class bachelors can do any extensive traveling now. One of the most incorrigible (or hopeless), Charlie Reeves, attended the 1956 Winter Olympics in Cortino, Italy. Another globetrotter equally resistant to feminine wiles is Tom Cassilly, who is in the Foreign Service. At the moment he is in Iran and has been in Korea and Martinique.
Zandy Harvey has been appointed assistant attorney general while Ted Waters, who once had a similiar appointment, is a practicing attorney.
Speaking of practicing, Charlie Ellicott is busy in medicine in Lexington, Mass. His wife, Marjorie, is also a physician, at least when she is not taking care of their daughter Adrianne.
Vernon Root has been elected President of the Washington, D.C. Chapter of Association of Technical Writers and Editors.
Unless time has greatly dimmed your memory, you may recall that it has been fifteen years since the class of 1941 left Gilman. Among those present at the Annual Banquet this fall were Fred Brune, Zandy Harvey, Charlie Reeves, Ray Moore, John Pierson, and Larry Wharton. Let's see a few more there next year.

1950

*Thomas H. Powell, 3601 N. Charles St., Baltimore 18, Md.

1956 marks a transition point for our class as members pour from school and the military into what they expect will be careers. Happily we heard at last from some of the lost brethren outside the city.
For example, Fletcher Lowe writes that he is just out of the Navy after two years stateside and in Europe. He is now studying at the General Theological Seminary.

Ralph Kennan is about to return from Germany after a year of working on-the Stars and Stripes there.

Meanwhile Cubby Eason is finishing up at Carnegie Tech where he is studying architecture. He spent the summer in Europe on a fine arts tour.

John Deck, in Palisades Park, N.J., has been appointed accounting supervisor there of the N.Y. Telephone Co. He also expects to be a father come March, 1957.

Many of the flock still remain in the service. Of these, John Boynton is at Fort Bragg, N.C. He had a son, John Boynton, II, on 21 May this year.
John Hurst also in the Army and at Ft. Ord, California, married Tish Trimper of Baltimore on the 19th of May this year.

Bruce Lloyd is learning to fly jets at Webb AFB, Texas, and on the really cushy side Bob Bates is a Naval jg with the rank of dentist.

Elmo Dunkak, a Navy pilot now for 3 years, is stationed in California.

Naturally enough there are still a number of the boys in medical school. Charlie Brown is at Penn in the winter and aug. ments his summer income as a pathologist and handyman about the Baltimore morgue. More pleasantly involved in a tour of Europe and summer study at Guy's Hospital in London were Sammy Lumpkin and Billy Jarrett, both studying at Johns Hopkins.

Still in school, graduate or otherwise, are Hugh Young at Yale after a two year hitch in the Army Medical Corps; Gordon Stick at Johns Hopkins; Friday

Hodges at Georgia Tech after two years in the Navy; and Pat Foster, who has repaired to the University of Edinburgh.
At Maryland Law School are Has Franklin and Charlie Carroll, the latter holding down a job with C&P telephone and supporting two children. Deak Miller forsook Yale for Harvard Law which he finds reminiscent of merrie old England.

Dave Griswold is teaching at Greenwich Country Day after a July release from the Air Force.
Finally there are around Baltimore the following unassigned and unattached personnel: Dixon Hills, Kirk Rodgers, Bish Powell, Freddy Steinmann, and Luke Watts.
This completes our Rogue's Gallery except for additional information on marriages and births which will be found elsewhere in the issue.

1953

*H. Brooks Baker, 4959 Hillbrook Lane, N.W., Washington, D.C.

Peter Banker married Judith Brant, Stamford, Conn., October 9, 1955.
Tom Firor and Tom Perkins just returned from an archaeological expedition to Jordan, Egypt and several Near Eastern nations.
Pete Bouscaren is on the Varsity Lacrosse at Yale.
Henry Thomas is on the Student Council of Haverford College.

Warden Clark is on the Dean's List at Brown.

Richard Allen was elected President of Beta Theta Pi Fraternity, Johns Hopkins.

Ed. Dunn was elected to Board of Bric-ABrac at Princeton.

Cary Woodward was elected Chairman of The Tiger at Princeton.
H. Brooks Baker was assistant to Harold Stassen during Herter for Vice-President campaign. At the same time he served as Chairman of Young Americans for Eisenhower-Herter and managed Herter national headquarters in Washington, D.C. and San Francisco. He is President of the Student Body at Trinity College. He invented a spelling game for children called "Spellavision."

1954

*Ralph L. DeGroff, Jr., 208 Taplow Rd., Baltimore 12, Md.

Roger Howell, Jr., the recipient of the Fisher Medallion while at Gilman, is continuing his excellent work at Bowdoin College, both scholastically and extracurricularly. He has been a James Bowdoin Scholar for two years, having maintained a straight "A" average. He is also a member of the student council, the president of the Bowdoin Caledonian Society, the vice president of the Interfaith Forum, and the managing editor of the daily newspaper The Orient.

Scott Sullivan has been elected to the Elizebethan Club, famous literary society composed of a distinguished group of faculty members and undergraduates interested in the "promotion of a larger appreciation of literature and the arts." Scott is also on the editorial staff of the Yale Daily News.

Cliff Harding and Bill Widhelm are putting to good use their football knowledge gained at Gilman to spur on the John Hopkins Bluejays.

Remak Ramsay can be seen this year on the stage of the Princeton Triangle Show.

Tom Burdette will be found again this year guarding the Princeton goal when the lacrosse season rolls around this spring.

Neil Bouscaren was a member of the varsity lacrosse team at Yale last spring.
The Class of 1954 wishes to express its deepest and most sincere sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. Callard and family over the recent and untimely death of their son and one-time member of our class, Francis Callard.

1955

*Mark P. Carliner, 2217 South Road, Baltimore 9, Md.
Those reading the Sunday papers during April were soon aware that Frank Bonsal had established himself as one of the most able and successful jockeys over timber. The highlights were his victories aboard Lancrel in the My Lady's Manor Point-toPoint and the Maryland Hunt Cup, which were extremely well ridden and earned deserved praise. Always right up among the leaders was Stokes Lott who consistently turned in competent performances on top Starboard.
Dick Jackson continued his fine record here at school in being elected both Secretary of his class at Williams and Treasurer of the College. In addition he excelled in Freshman lacrosse and football.

Our class gave a considerable boost to lacrosse along the East Coast. Almost half of the class were regular performers on various freshman teams. Particularly outstanding were Sam Merrick, a leading scorer on the Washington and Lee varsity, and Pete Powell, captain of the Princeton freshmen.

Academically, three earned honors especially: Ray Buerket at West Point, Dennis Rawlins at Harvard, and R. L. Smith at Rollins.

Two who have recently moved from Baltimore are R. L. Smith to Tampa and Dario Puerto, now living in Philadelphia.

Notice is given elsewhere of the tragic death of Franny Callard while swimming on July first.

FACULTY

Ramsay Jones has left Gilman to assume the post of dean of men at Gettysburg College.

Oz Wyckoff writes that he is retiring from his administrative work at Williams after this year and is planning to travel.
Janney Hutton has purchased a new home on the East River in Mathews County, Virginia.

Gren Benedict spent his sabbatical year in tour of Europe.
